Introduction

Welcome to a new path of adventure!

This book provides a new adventure setting and challenging gameplay for "Sword World 2.5".

Tombs are a setting of this book. The eternal resting places of the wizard-kings who were the bearers of the Magic Civilization that once reached the height of prosperity and wielded immense power. These burial sites, constructed to have posterity praise them or in hopes of their own resurrection, are equipped with various defenses to protect the remains and burial goods. It is also known that wizard-kings tended to recreate their living environments within their tombs, making them places of adventure filled with danger, mystery, and mountains of treasure.

New abilities and items have been introduced so that characters challenging the tombs can demonstrate greater power. The Bibliomancer, who has revived powerful ancient magic, shows skills a cut above the rest in both combat and exploration. The items overflowing with magic created by great "Enchanters" will attract PCs as rewards, and once obtained, will guide adventures to success with their unparalleled effects.

Various monsters have also been added to bring new color to adventures. Distinctive monsters befitting the tomb setting await you.

Now, on to the raider's tale!

Part One, "Characters," first explains the newly added Bibliomancer class. The Arcane Magic revived by this class has weaknesses in its heavy MP consumption and the limited number of spells that can be used regularly, but once invoked, its power is outstanding. It covers everything from attacks to defense, healing to exploration, and if mastered, one can expect peerless performance.

Work skills related to challenging tombs have also been added. These will enhance character individuality and immersion in the adventure on various occasions.

Finally, the rules for three "Challenges"—"Excavation," "Discovery," and "Searching"—and the "Dig Arts" useful during them are introduced. Through these, challenges to tombs will be recreated more dynamically.

Part Two, "World," provides an explanation of the "tombs and arcane texts" that this book covers, including their history. It explains the origins of Arcane Magic, the development of the Bibliomancer class, and what kind of beings the wizard-kings who constructed the tombs were.

It also explains the "Leondar Archipelago," which contains the tombs, using several specific examples. Distinctive islands and the tombs associated with them. Understand this section and prepare the stage for your adventures.

Part Three, "Random Tomb Creation Rules," is exactly what the name suggests—rules for randomly generating tombs and playing through them. Make active use of the "Challenges" introduced in Part One and enjoy the adventures of the raiders as they tackle the tombs.

Part Four, "Magic Items," adds numerous magic items that will enrich your adventures. It also introduces the "Enchanters," the great figures of the ancient wizard-king nations who crafted these items, and you can enjoy their stories as well.

Part Five is "Monster Data." Approximately 80 monsters have been added, centered around the Leondar Archipelago. Among them are 8 "Boss-Class Monsters" designed to stand as the final obstacles in adventures.

You Are Going to Need Rulebooks

This book adds new rules and data to Sword World 2.5. Therefore, in order to play with the contents of this book, you will need Sword World 2.5 Core Rulebook I, CR II, CR III, or Sword World 2.5 Core Rulebook DX.

Please note that the Random Dungeon Creation Rules are designed with the monsters appearing in Core Rulebooks I-III in mind. You can instead use Monstrous Lore.

Part 1 Characters

This part contains an explanation of the new Biblomancer class and data for the Arcane Magic wielded by that class.

Additional work skills that add depth to characters, Challenge rules for playing raiders' adventures dynamically, and Dig Arts for gaining advantageous effects during those challenges are also introduced.

Bibliomancer (Wizard-Type Major Class)

"Pursuing the wizard-king's secret arts—
that's what Arcane Magic is about.
You understand the romance of it, don't you?"

Class Description

Arcane Magic recreates the powerful magic of the Magic Civilization Period through Grimoires. When casting magic, you use a dedicated Grimoire as an implement, tracing the written arcana with your finger while vocalizing.

While the Grimoire occupies one hand when carrying it, when casting Arcane Magic, it floats up on its own, requiring only one hand to trace, so both hands are never occupied simultaneously.

Unlike other magic systems, Arcane Magic requires you to purchase the spells you use, inscribe them in your Grimoire, and prepare them in slots called "prepared spell slots" and "emergency spell slots" (see p. 18-19) that you acquire per level.

Once purchased, spells can be swapped into these slots at any time.

While the number of spells available for regular use is limited (you still use MP for them), each spell's effect is extremely powerful. This is a somewhat technical class that requires careful consideration of which spells to prepare before adventuring, but it has potential that virtually guarantees success.

"Tabbid Bibliomancer" Character Description

This is a Tabbid Bibliomancer who uses Arcane Magic through the Bibliomancer class.

This sample character boasts high intelligence as a Tabbid and can use Arcane Magic with high Magic Power. Although the variety of spells they can handle is not wide, it is possible to solve difficult problems or even turn the tide of battle with a single spell casting. This sample character has prepared the rank 1 healing spell [Corpus Reparare] and the attack spell [Lancare Ruinas] as "prepared spell slots," making them available for use at any time.

If you want to use Arcane Magic other than these two types, you need to purchase the spell that the character wants to learn and either replace it with one of the spells or cast it as an "emergency spell slot." Once purchased, a spell can be used indefinitely thereafter.

Additionally, they have also acquired the Sage class, which utilizes knowledge, so they should be able to fully fulfill their expected role as a "fountain of wisdom."

Note that because initial funds were spent on purchasing spells and implements, they have not purchased armor and do not have "Lifegrass" or other items effective for the Ranger class. In the beginning, rely on your companions for help.

For growth, prioritize raising the Bibliomancer class above all else. You will soon be able to prepare and cast higher rank Arcane Magic in your increased "prepared spell slots."

Since many of the spells available for purchase have strong individuality, it's advisable to consult with companions you are adventuring with. Even adding just one spell you can cast will increase opportunities to shine.

Combat Feats should be acquired to ensure spells can be cast without issue, but if you have spare capacity, it would be interesting to acquire feats like [Grimoire Proficiency A]. If you aim to become a magic warrior, you can carry a Grimoire with unique effects and demonstrate originality. Since you will also be purchasing spells, use your acquired rewards strategically.

Buy lots of powerful ancient magic, customize it as you wish, and aim to become a great ancient wizard!

Bibliomancer Class

Bibliomancer Class Wizard Type Class Major Class

The Bibliomancer class is designed to revive and wield a form of magic called "Arcane Magic," a secret art created and used during the Magic Civilization Period.

Arcane Magic is a magic system created during the Magic Civilization Period with the aim of achieving the ultimate magic. It was characterized by strengthening effects through single-function specialization, simplified procedures, and high learning flexibility. Its essence lies in the "Grimoire." The complex spell-casting procedures were delegated to the "Grimoire," and on the premise of this advanced preparation, powerful magic could be used with ease.

It was the Bibliomancers who excavated this Arcane Magic, which had been lost with the collapse of the Magic Civilization, and brought it back into the world.

Bibliomancers analyze Arcane Magic "Grimoires" discovered in ruins and other sites, refine them for their own use, and then wield them. Their effects are exactly the same as those from the Magic Civilization Period, when they were wielded by wizard-kings and nobles and became symbols of awe.

However, Arcane Magic, which was once the most closely guarded secret, had its "Grimoire" descriptions written in codes and composite magic characters to prevent leakage, with different methods for each school and lineage. Therefore, even when "Grimoires" from that era are discovered today, they are not something that can be immediately mastered.

While handling spells whose analysis has been completed, and experimentally wielding newly discovered ones, Bibliomancers devote themselves to their research and challenges.

In Arcane Magic, "Magic Power" is defined and used, just as with other Wizard-Type Classes.

Arcane Magic Magic Power =

Bibliomancer class level + Intelligence bonus

The following checks can be made with the Bibliomancer class.

- Spellcasting Check (see CR I, p. 108)
- Literature check (see CR I, p. 107)

Also, if you acquire the Bibliomancer class, you will be able to speak and read the Arcana language.

Races Restricted From the Bibliomancer class

Lykants: Cannot be used during [Beast Form]

The use of Arcane Magic requires vocalization through Arcana. Lykants in [Beast Form] cannot vocalize arcana and therefore cannot use Arcane Magic.

Reinterpreting the Background Tables

When creating a character using "Detailed Creation" (see CR I, p. 61), you may replace "Sorcerer class" or "Conjurer class" with "Bibliomancer class" in backgrounds where those classes exist.

Basics of Arcane Magic

Conditions for Using Arcane Magic

Those who have mastered the Bibliomancer class can wield Arcane Magic. Arcane Magic takes effect by tracing spells prepared in a Grimoire with one's finger and finally vocalizing the spell's name.

When tracing a spell with one's finger, it must be done with correct grammar and procedure. If using anything other than what the Bibliomancer themselves has prepared, this cannot be guaranteed, and the risk of failure in casting increases significantly.

Unlike other magic systems, Arcane Magic does not allow automatic acquisition of each spell through class level advancement. Each spell becomes castable only when the Bibliomancer obtains it through some means. Some Arcane Magic has already been analyzed by predecessors and can be purchased with money from the market.

Movement Type Restrictions

When casting Arcane Magic, movement during that turn is limited to Limited Move.

Vocalization

Casting Arcane Magic requires vocalizing the spell's name in arcana at the end. Nightmares in [Alternate Form] do not need to vocalize.

Armor Restrictions

Casting Arcane Magic is subject to the same restrictions as Truespeech Magic and Spiritualism magic. Specifically, if wearing metal armor or nonmetallic armor with a minimum strength of 10 or higher, a penalty modifier must be applied to the Spellcasting check.

Nightmares in [Alternate Form] are not subject to this restriction.

Armor	Penalty
Nonmetallic armor with a minimum strength of 10 or more	-2
Metal armor	-4

Grimoire

A Grimoire is essential for casting arcane spells. Each Bibliomancer possesses their own Grimoire, in which they inscribe spells using composite magic characters. When the time comes to cast, they must trace these characters precisely with their finger.

This tracing skill must be flawless, and the accumulation of technique through experience is crucial. The number and quality of spells that a Bibliomancer can simultaneously prepare in their Grimoire and commit the procedures to memory depend on their class level (see p. 18).

The way spells are inscribed in a Grimoire is heavily influenced by individual quirks, preferences, and style. When a Bibliomancer attempts to cast Arcane Magic using another person's Grimoire, there is a possibility of failure due to procedural errors (see p. 19).

A Grimoire is treated as an item with "Stance: 1H."

Multiple Grimoires

A character may hold one Grimoire in each hand, but only one Grimoire can be used for a single arcane spell casting. Some Grimoires grant special effects when casting Arcane Magic, but these effects are limited to the Grimoire used for that casting.

"Equipping" a Grimoire

Some Grimoires can function as weapons or shields, and such items are "equipped" in accordance with weapons or shields.

When "equipped" in this manner, their effects are always active. Therefore, you can wield a Grimoire as a weapon while benefiting from the Defense of a Grimoire used as a shield, and during a [Multi-Action], you can wield a Grimoire as a weapon while relying on a different Grimoire with special effects for spellcasting. Note that the effects of two shields cannot stack under the core rules (see CR I, p. 153).

Arcane Magic Ranks

Arcane Magic has five ranks, ranging from 1 to 5. The higher the rank, the more complex and powerful the effects. To use high-rank Arcane Magic, one must have mastered the Bibliomancer class at a high level.

Guild of Arcane Manuscripts

Arcane Magic becomes usable by discovering Grimoires that were once used and analyzing what is written in them.

During the Magic Civilization Period, practitioners of these arts were secretive, and the methods of recording magic differed from school to school and lineage to lineage. Beyond that, there were even those who used ciphers that only they themselves could understand.

Modern Bibliomancers discover and analyze these texts to make them their own, but for the reasons mentioned above, the target Arcane Magic is needlessly complex and esoteric. Conducting analysis individually and separately is extremely inefficient and does not lead to the accumulation of knowledge.

The Guild of Arcane Manuscripts naturally emerged and developed to fill this need. Its role is to collect and analyze discovered Grimoires and return them to the world. By selling research results, it generates funds to purchase discoveries and employ researchers, advancing the study of Arcane Magic. Because it targets Grimoires, it has also taken on the character of a specialized institution that broadly investigates literature from the Magic Civilization Period, not limited to Arcane Magic alone, and is thus called the Guild of Arcane Manuscripts.

The Guild of Arcane Manuscripts works in close cooperation with the Adventurers' Guild and Plunderers Guild, dedicating itself to researching excavated literature.

Acquiring and Mastering Arcane Magic

Unlike other Wizard-Type Classes, Bibliomancer cannot automatically gain spells through increasing class levels.

Therefore, it is necessary to "obtain" each individual Arcane Magic in some form.

Additionally, to use them without issue, you must fully understand the content and "master" them.

Purchasing from the Guild of Arcane Manuscripts

Some Arcane Magic has already been sufficiently analyzed. Bibliomancers can purchase those analyzed ones with money.

The purchase price depends on the arcane spell rank. For each purchase, the specified amount of money must be paid.

When purchasing, your class level must meet the rank requirements specified by the casting slots (see p. 19).

Mastering Purchased Arcane Magic

Arcane Magic purchased from the Guild of Arcane Manuscripts can be mastered immediately upon acquisition. Note that Arcane Magic purchased on the market cannot be resold.

Market Purchase Price for Arcane Magic

Rank	Price (G)
1	500
2	1,500
3	3,000
4	6,000
5	12,000

Obtaining During Adventures

Adventurers may discover Grimoires used in the past in ruins and other locations during their adventures. These Grimoires often contain undiscovered Arcane Magic.

Through this, PCs can obtain new Arcane Magic. While limited, it is not impossible to use the obtained Arcane Magic (see p. 19).

Selling and Learning Arcane Magic Obtained During Adventures

When Arcane Magic is obtained during an adventure, Bibliomancers who are adventurers can sell it to the Guild of Arcane Manuscripts after the adventure.

In the case of undiscovered Arcane Magic that has not yet been analyzed by the Guild of Arcane Manuscripts, it can be sold for double the guild's purchase price based on rank.

Even if it has already been analyzed and made available on the market by the guild, it can be sold for half the market purchase price. Each Arcane Magic has a different notation system, and gathering knowledge about these differences is something the Guild of Arcane Manuscripts greatly seeks.

Selling Price of Arcane Magic

Rank	Analyzed	Not yet discovered
1	250G	1,000G
2	750G	3,000G
3	1,500G	6,000G
4	3,000G	12,000G
5	6,000G	24,000G

If the rank of the sold Arcane Magic meets the rank requirements defined by the spell slots (described later) for your own class level, the Bibliomancer will provide you with the analysis results free of charge as a token of gratitude. This allows you to learn that Arcane Magic.

However, in the case of undiscovered Arcane Magic that the Guild of Arcane Manuscripts has not yet put on sale, this can only happen after the guild has taken some time to analyze it. If the time between adventures is extremely short, there may be cases where the PC cannot learn it in time.

If you are concerned about this and wish to keep the option to cast it without learning it first, the PC can keep it on hand instead of selling it. Once sold, the Grimoire containing it will leave the PC's possession, making it impossible to cast during an adventure.

Time Until Undiscovered Arcane Magic Is Analyzed

Rank	Time
1	3 days
2	1 week
3	2 weeks
4	3 weeks
5	1 month

Arcane Magic And Spell Slots

Those who have acquired the Bibliomancer class gain spell slots for casting spells according to the table below.

There are two types of spell slots: "prepared spell slots" and "emergency spell slots."

Bibliomancer Class Spell Slot Table

Level	Rank and Number of Prepared Spell Slots	Rank of Emergency Spell Slots
1	1 x 1	1
2	1 x 2
3	1 x 3
4	1 x 3, 2 x 1	2
5	1 x 3, 2 x 2
6	1-2 x 3
7	1-2 x 3, 3 x 1	3
8	1-2 x 3, 3 x 2
9	1-3 x 3
10	1-3 x 3, 4 x 1	4
11	1-3 x 3, 4 x 2
12	1-4 x 3
13	1-4 x 3, 5 x 1	5
14	1-4 x 3, 5 x 2
15	1-5 x 3

Rank Restrictions for Purchase/Acquisition and Spell Slots

The "Bibliomancer Class Spell Slot Table" indicates that Bibliomancer class level is closely tied to the rank of Arcane Magic.

The maximum rank indicated for prepared spell slots, or the rank indicated for emergency spell slots (both are the same), is directly used to determine whether a Bibliomancer can purchase from the Guild of Arcane Manuscripts (see p. 17) or whether they are eligible for free acquisition rights after selling undiscovered Arcane Magic obtained during adventures.

Casting Arcane Magic using Prepared Spell Slots

For a Bibliomancer to use Arcane Magic, they must first inscribe the magical formulas in their "Grimoire" using composite magic characters. Then, they need to trace them with their finger, following precise steps and procedures. These steps and procedures must be strictly adhered to, but they are difficult enough that you'll make mistakes easily if you only remember them roughly. Even after learning them once, if you don't continue to practice and memorize them repeatedly, your ability to reproduce them becomes unreliable.

Therefore, mastering multiple Arcane Magics simultaneously requires experience and proficiency. The "prepared spell slots" defined by the Bibliomancer class level represent this limitation.

A Bibliomancer must decide in advance which spells they can actually cast from among the Arcane Magic they have "learned," within the constraints of their "prepared spell slots."

For example, if a Bibliomancer class is at level 1, even if they have learned two or more Rank 1 Arcane Magics, they can only prepare one of them in their prepared spell slot. The Arcane Magic that can be cast from this slot is limited to that one spell.

A character can bring multiple Grimoires on an adventure, but the prepared spell slots are shared, and they must prepare the same spells in all of them (you cannot increase the number of spells available in your prepared spell slots by changing them for each Grimoire).

Casting from Prepared Spell Slots

Casting Arcane Magic from prepared spell slots works exactly the same as any other standard spellcasting. You make a Spellcasting check, and if the spell has resistance, it becomes a comparison of Success Values against the target's Willpower.

MP consumption and rules for automatic success and automatic failure from double 6s and double 1s remain completely unchanged.

Limitations by Rank

Prepared spell slots have limitations based on rank and number. For example, if a Bibliomancer class is at level 4, they only have one rank 2 prepared spell slot, so even if they have learned two or more rank 2 arcane spells, they can only prepare one in a prepared spell slot.

It is possible to prepare lower-rank Arcane Magic in higher-level slots. For example, a level 4 Bibliomancer may fill all four prepared spell slots with rank 1 spells.

Changing Prepared Spell Slots

A Bibliomancer can replace the Arcane Magic they had prepared in their prepared spell slots with another spell they have learned. However, this requires time corresponding to the rank of the Arcane Magic being newly prepared.

Time Required to Change Prepared Spell Slots

Rank	Time
1	1 hour
2	2 hours
3	3 hours
4	6 hours
5	12 hours

Casting Arcane Magic using Emergency Spell Slots

A Bibliomancer can cast Arcane Magic that is not prepared in their prepared spell slots by using emergency spell slots.

Casting using emergency spell slots carries the risk of critical failure (described later). Additionally, they cannot be cast with a Minor Action or during Combat Preparation.

Arcane Magic that can be cast with Emergency Spell Slots

There are two main types of Arcane Magic that can be cast with emergency spell slots. The first is magic that the Bibliomancer has learned but has not prepared in their prepared spell slots.

The second is casting Arcane Magic, recorded in literature describing Arcane Magic, such as Grimoires discovered during an adventure, or Arcane Magic written in another person's Grimoire, without prior practice.

In the latter case—that is, when a Bibliomancer does not use their own Grimoire—even spells that were prepared in prepared spell slots must be cast using emergency spell slots.

Rank Restrictions

Bibliomancers have restrictions on the rank of Arcane Magic that can be used with emergency spell slots according to their class level (these restrictions are the same as the maximum rank for prepared spell slots). They cannot cast spells of a rank that exceeds this restriction.

Unlike prepared spell slots, emergency spell slots have no numerical limit.

Cannot be cast as Minor Action or Combat Preparation

When casting spells with a Minor Action or during Combat Preparation, only those prepared in prepared spell slots may be used. Casting using emergency spell slots is not permitted.

Emergency Spell Slot Risk: Critical Failure

When casting Arcane Magic using an emergency spell slot, there is a risk of a failure called a "critical failure" occurring.

Critical Failure Value

At the start of a session, the player controlling the Bibliomancer rolls 2d. If the result is double 1s or double 6s, reroll until you get a result between 3 and 11. No effects that manipulate or modify dice results can be applied to this 2d roll. Record the result obtained as the "critical failure value."

Critical Failure Occurrence

When attempting to cast Arcane Magic from an emergency spell slot, if the dice result on the Spellcasting check matches the "critical failure value," the spell casting is treated as an "automatic failure" regardless of the caster's Magic Power or other conditions.

The spell produces no effects whatsoever. MP and other costs must still be paid. It is the same as an automatic failure from double 1s, except that no experience points are gained.

If you use an effect that manipulates or changes the dice result itself (such as [Sword's Grace/Change Fate]) to make the result differ from the critical failure value, you can avoid the critical failure. Normal bonus or penalty modifiers increase or decrease the Success Value and do not change the dice result itself, so they have no effect.

Changes to Critical Failure Value

When a critical failure occurs, the Bibliomancer rolls 2d to determine a new critical failure value. At this time, double 1s, double 6s, and rolls matching the previous critical failure value are rerolled, ensuring the result is always different and within the range of 3-11.

During this redetermination procedure, no effects that manipulate or modify dice rolls may be applied. Additionally, critical failure values do not carry over from session to session. At the start of a new session, the critical failure value is redetermined.

Critical Failure Values Are Managed Individually

When there are multiple Bibliomancers in the party, their critical failure values are managed individually.

Combat Feats Useful for Bibliomancer Class

[MP Save/Bibliomancer]

In the class selection for [MP Save/], you can select the Bibliomancer class. This reduces the MP cost when using Arcane Magic by 1 point.

Additional Combat Feats

Three Combat Feats are added: [Grimoire Proficiency A], [Grimoire Proficiency S], and [Grimoire Mastery].

All of these are selectable passive combat feats that relate to the use of items in the new item category "Grimoire". Like the [Weapon Proficiency] and [Armor Proficiency] feats, they are necessary to use more powerful, higher-rank Grimoires.

After purchasing, leave a message in the #request-embargo-access channel of the Sword World fan Discord server with "@Moderator Please help me get access to the fan translation of Tyrants' Crypts." to gain access to the fan translation. As a thank you will also gain permanent access to embargo-bonus-chat where translators update people with what will come up and insights into the translations.

Beware! All future fan translations will remain private and cannot be shared publicly here or anywhere else. Anyone who shares these translations will be banned from our servers. You may discuss the translations in public channels, but please do not share screenshots or significant portions of the translated content.
